

Climate Change and the Importance of Electing Progressive Candidates

The Central Valley Progressive PAC thanks the Community Alliance newspaper for printing a special section this month on climate change. This series of articles, written by a diverse group of local activists, illustrates the importance of environmental justice and moves us closer to finding solutions to the crisis.

A theme throughout the special section is the need to have elected officials who are responsive to our concerns and will develop policies that move us closer to our goal of a greener community—better public transportation, more parks and cleaner air.

The CVPPAC is working to elect progressive candidates who will help us reach that goal. We invite all groups working for social, economic and environmental justice to unite and elect candidates who support these goals. Join us! Become a part of the movement that will implement the Green New Deal, ensure police accountability and end homelessness.

You can join by clipping out the membership form on this page. The next meeting of the CVPPAC will be via Zoom on April 10 at 3:30 p.m. For more information, contact Simone Cranston-Rhodes at 559-978-4504 or simone.rhodes@seiu521.org.
